

Today's News - June 16, 2004

This week ArcSpace takes us to Germany (twice), Denmark, and New York. -- The Whitney picks Piano. -- Was there "dishonourable conduct" in Ontario memorial design competition? (If there's a re-do, who would re-enter?) -- A Brit looks at Toronto's architectural renaissance. -- A Canadian village's historic hotel is saved. -- Sleekness in Seattle. -- Imitation in Denver. -- Hoping for green - and memorable - architecture in Wisconsin. -- A white revival in Sydney. -- Rem and Lord Norman meet in Dallas: "As an intellectual bakeoff, it was undercooked. But the buildings themselves are stunning." -- A treasure trove of Frank Lloyd Wright in Florida. -- The quest - and market - for high design in everyday objects.
